Emergency Management

In Georgia, the West Mims Fire in the Okefenokee National Wildlife Refuge has burned 152,147 (no change) acres. The fire is 18-percent (no change) contained and managed by a Type-1 Incident Management Team with 944 (+49) personnel, including 152 (+20) DOI personnel. There are 800 (no change) residences and 7 (no change) commercial structures threatened. There have been 6 (+1) responder injuries reported. Portions of the refuge remain closed to the public. The containment date is November 1.

The Crown Mountain Fire, which began on May 14 within the Big Bend National Park in Texas, has burned 1,041 acres. The fire is 60-percent contained and managed by a Type-3 Incident Management Team with 156 personnel, including 36 DOI personnel. The fire has resulted in several trail and campground closures, and 300 people have been evacuated. There have been no injuries. The containment date is May 22.

Secretary Zinke Announces $23.6M For Water Conservation.

TriplePundit (5/15, Casey) reports that on Friday, Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke “announced a $26.3 million round of funding aimed at boosting water supplies in seven western states.” The $23.6 million comes through the Bureau of Reclamation. Zinke said, “This funding provides essential tools for stretching limited water supplies by helping communities reclaim and reuse wastewater and impaired ground or surface waters … These tools are just part of the toolkit for bridging the gap between water supply and demand and thus making water supplies more drought-resistant.”

More Time For Public Comment Urged On Bears Ears National Monument.

The Salt Lake (UT) Tribune (5/15, Maffly) reports that “the 15-day window for public comment on Utah’s Bears Ears National Monument is closing fast, prompting calls on the Department of Interior to expand the comment period beyond May 26 and to add ways for interested residents to weigh in on the controversial designation and 26 other large monuments.” The article also points out that “Interior officials are soliciting input on the matter online through the federal website www.regulations.gov, despite the lack of internet access among some American Indians affiliated with the tribes that either proposed or support the 1.3-million-acre monument.” Monument advocates also say “they were largely excluded from engaging with Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke during his four-day swing through Utah last week on a ‘listening tour’ organized by Gov. Gary Herbert’s staff.”

Interior Deputy Secretary Nominee Bernhardt To Face Senate.

The Hill (5/15, Cama, Henry) reports that Interior Deputy Secretary nominee David Bernhardt is scheduled to testify before the Energy and Natural Resources Committee on Thursday. The article notes that “the former George W. Bush administration veteran was unanimously confirmed to the No. 3 spot at Interior in 2006, a fact likely to come up from Bernhardt’s supporters at the hearing.” However, “greens and conservation groups, not to mention some Democrats, oppose Bernhardt’s nomination on conflict of interest grounds, raising the prospect of a more bitter confirmation process than for other nominees who went through the energy panel.” But “Bernhardt is likely to find strong support among Republicans: Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke has praised his ‘extensive experience’ and ‘legal career’ as ‘exactly what is needed to help streamline government and make the Interior and our public lands work for the American economy.””

Op-Ed: Secretary Zinke Is “Promoting True Conservation”.

For the “Pundits” blog of The Hill (5/15, Hoffman, Contributor), Gabriella Hoffman, a conservative media strategist and consultant, writes that Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke’s “reverence for angling, hunting and the outdoors means that he is promoting true conservation in his new post instead of preservation.” Hoffman draws a distinction between conservation, which is “seen as the proper use of nature,” and preservation, which “aims to protect nature from any use.” According to Hoffman, “the latter philosophy has prevented Americans from fully enjoying opportunities in nature.”

Petition Seeks Halt To Cape Cod National Seashore Coyote Hunts.

The Cape Cod (MA) Times (5/15, List) reports that “nearly 3,000 people have signed a petition calling for the Cape Cod National Seashore to ban the hunting of carnivores, such as coyotes, shorten the hunting season for other animals and fund the research of carnivores in the park.” The petition “also asks the Seashore to hire Jonathan Way, who currently works as a part-time ranger, for a full-time or term position as a biologist to study Eastern coyotes in the Seashore.”

Pence Tells Crow Tribe: “War On Coal Is Over.”

Montana Public Radio (5/15, Yamanaka) reports Vice President Pence told the Crow Tribe on Friday in Montana, “On behalf of the President of the United States I am here to announce the war on coal is over.” Crow Tribe Vice Chairman Carlson Goes Ahead told Pence during the visit that the tribe’s coal mine is “the lifeblood of the Crow,” but he said the recent downturn in the coal market and EPA regulations have hurt their economy. Goes Ahead advocated for the Administration having coal export terminals built on the Pacific Northwest coast to link US coal markets to Asia and for Congress making permanent the Indian Coal Production Tax Credit.

White House Communications Report

Report was sent Monday.

Inquiries

- A number of local outlets (REQUEST) Looking for the Department’s statement regarding the temporary pause in FACA committees. (RESPONSE) – “The Secretary is committed to restoring trust in the Department’s decision-making and that begins with institutionalizing state and local input and ongoing collaboration, particularly in communities surrounding public lands. The Department currently has more than 200 boards, committees, and other internal and external advisory functions that are authorized to solicit input and meet periodically. To maximize feedback from these boards and ensure their compliance with the Federal Advisory Committee Act and the President’s recent executive orders, the Department is currently reviewing the charter and charge of each Board/Advisory Committee. This review process necessitates the temporary postponement of advisory committee meetings. As the Department concludes its review in the weeks ahead, agencies will notice future meetings to ensure that the Department continues to get the benefit of the views of local communities in all decision-making on public land management.”
